MOBILE APP DEVELOPED BY CLASS X STUDENT

Anmol Jhamb of X E has designed an apparently simple yet path breaking Android App, which is programmed to control home appliances using smartphones. It uses an open source electronics prototyping platform based on flexible, easy-to-use hardware and software, which allows one to control electrical appliances with clicks or voice commands. Commands sent via Bluetooth relays the information to the home automation circuit and the appliance behave accordingly. The core competence of Anmol lies in programming and he aims to pursue computer engineering from IIT. He is all geared up to opt for Computers as his optional subject in class XI. Currently, he is working on another app related to search engine. We wish our budding Bill Gates all the very best. We are sure that he will go places.
